MacDonald's Tourists' Guides.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The amount of information compressed into this single volume is amazing. No place of consequence is passed over, and the points of interest are in every case faithfully recorded."—Kelso Mail.

"Well got up, profusely illustrated, and a marvel of cheapness."—The Buteman.

"Useful to tourists, and possesses not a little value as a book of reference."—Arbroath Guide.

"The arrangement is excellent; the information well selected and accurate; and the maps and illustrations are plentiful, appropriate, and skilfully prepared and executed."—Jedburgh Gazette.

"No one should attempt to do Scotland—that is, roam over it by mountain, moor, loch, or fell—without having MacDonald's 'Scottish Tourist's Guides.'"—Midlothian Journal.

"Containing intelligence of the highest literary ability and authenticity; full of racy descriptions of all places of historical interest; contains hundreds of illustrations and several good maps."—Morecambe Visitor.

"It is a guide book to possess."—Ardrossan and Saltcoats Herald.

"We would recommend 'MacDonald's Scottish Tourists' Guide.'"—Isle of Wight Express.

"No guide book for Scotland so complete and so richly adorned has been published at anything like the money in our time."—Fife Herald.

"A useful map is given, and the book is freely illustrated."—North Berwick Advertiser.

"Seems well contrived to help the tourist to the utmost amount of enjoyment with the least waste of effort."—Kirkcudbrightshire Advertiser.

"Should prove extremely useful to travellers."—Falkirk Express.

"A most valuable travelling companion over Scotland."—John o' Groat Jour.

"It seems difficult how any tourist can thoroughly see any part of Scotland without its use. We can highly commend the publication."—Ulfracombe Chronicle.

"We have pleasure in commending such a sensible and reliable hand-book for tourists."—Helensburgh and Garsloch Times.

"No one should undertake to spend a holiday in Scotland without having this book in his possession; and above all it is most excellently illustrated."—Torquay Directory.

"The book is well printed and elegantly bound."—Northern Advertiser.

"The guide is unrivalled. The descriptive, historical, and literary references are wonderfully accurate."—Scottish Border Record.

"It ought to be on the commercial room or drawing-room table of every hotel where tourists are likely to frequent."—Perthshire Advertiser.

"The arrangement of the book is good, and the places are easily found."—Scottish Guardian.

"Full of information well brought up to date, and is a useful vade-mecum for trippers in any part of Scotland."—Elgin Courier.

"The guide is excellent, cheap, and handy."—Ayr Observer.

"Armed with a companion such as this the tourist in his search after 'fresh fields and pastures new' need never be at a loss for lack of information."—Oban Times.

"The information imparted is full, accurate, and well arranged and the letter-press is greatly aided by the woodcut and other illustrations which are found on nearly every page."—Hamilton Advertiser.

"Handy, cheap, and popular, MacDonald's guide book is worthy of wide circulation."—Dunoon Observer.

"The information is generally correct."—Dumfries and Galloway Courier.

"Profusely illustrated with views of the most exquisite scenery in Scotland, is indispensable to tourists, and nobody who contemplates a journey northwards should be without it."—Mona's Herald.

"Valuable for reference, embracing, as it does, so much and such wide-spread information regarding the land of the canny Scot. It is profusely and artistically illustrated, and is furnished with a number of most useful maps. We warmly commend the publication."—Hastings and St Leonards Observer.

"Almost on every page there are well-executed woodcuts. On the whole it is an excellent book."—Orkney Herald.

MacDonald's Tourists' Guides.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The amount of information compressed into this single volume is amazing. No place of consequence is passed over, and the points of interest are in every case faithfully recorded."—Kelso Mail.

"Well got up, profusely illustrated, and a marvel of cheapness."—The Buteman.

"Useful to tourists, and possesses not a little value as a book of reference."—Arbroath Guide.

"The arrangement is excellent; the information well selected and accurate; and the maps and illustrations are plentiful, appropriate, and skilfully prepared and executed."—Jedburgh Gazette.

"No one should attempt to do Scotland—that is, roam over it by mountain, moor, loch, or fell—without having MacDonald's 'Scottish Tourist's Guides.'"—Midlothian Journal.

"Containing intelligence of the highest literary ability and authenticity; full of racy descriptions of all places of historical interest; contains hundreds of illustrations and several good maps."—Morecambe Visitor.

"It is a guide book to possess."—Ardrossan and Saltcoats Herald.

"We would recommend 'MacDonald's Scottish Tourists' Guide.'"—Isle of Wight Express.

"No guide book for Scotland so complete and so richly adorned has been published at anything like the money in our time."—Fife Herald.

"A useful map is given, and the book is freely illustrated."—North Berwick Advertiser.

"Seems well contrived to help the tourist to the utmost amount of enjoyment with the least waste of effort."—Kirkcudbrightshire Advertiser.

"Should prove extremely useful to travellers."—Falkirk Express.

"A most valuable travelling companion over Scotland."—John o' Groat Jour.

"It seems difficult how any tourist can thoroughly see any part of Scotland without its use. We can highly commend the publication."—Ilfracombe Chronicle.

"We have pleasure in commending such a sensible and reliable hand-book for tourists."—Helensburgh and Gareloch Times.

"No one should undertake to spend a holiday in Scotland without having this book in his possession; and above all it is most excellently illustrated."—Torquay Directory.

"The book is well printed and elegantly bound."—Northern Advertiser.

"The guide is unrivalled. The descriptive, historical, and literary references are wonderfully accurate."—Scottish Border Record.

"It ought to be on the commercial room or drawing-room table of every hotel where tourists are likely to frequent."—Perthshire Advertiser.

"The arrangement of the book is good, and the places are easily found."—Scottish Guardian.

"Full of information well brought up to date, and is a useful vade-mecum for trippers in any part of Scotland."—Elgin Courier.

"The guide is excellent, cheap, and handy."—Ayr Observer.

"Armed with a companion such as this the tourist in his search after 'fresh fields and pastures new' need never be at a loss for lack of information."—Oban Times.

"The information imparted is full, accurate, and well arranged, and the letter-press is greatly aided by the woodcut and other illustrations which are found on nearly every page."—Hamilton Advertiser.

"Handy, cheap, and popular, MacDonald's guide book is worthy of wide circulation."—Dunoon Observer.

"The information is generally correct."—Dumfries and Galloway Courier.

"Profusely illustrated with views of the most exquisite scenery in Scotland, is indispensable to tourists, and nobody who contemplates a journey northwards should be without it."—Mona's Herald.

"Valuable for reference, embracing, as it does, so much and such wide-spread information regarding the land of the canny Scot. It is profusely and artistically illustrated, and is furnished with a number of most useful maps. We warmly commend the publication."—Hastings and St Leonards Observer.

"Almost on every page there are well-executed woodcuts. On the whole it is an excellent book."—Orkney Herald.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Times, 29th January, 1887.

MacDonald's Scottish Directory and Gazetteer.—The work which Messrs. Kelly have done so long and so successfully for London and for England and Wales, Messrs. W. MacDonald & Co., of Milne Square, Edinburgh, have accomplished for Scotland, and for its two capitals, both that of law, learning, and fashion in the east, and that of commerce and industry in the west. In this volume we find duly recorded the names of all the merchants, shippers, and manufacturers of Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee, Aberdeen, Greenock, and Paisley, followed by an appendix, which contains the chief firms of a similar kind in Birmingham and other centres of industry to the south of the Tweed. Upwards of 40,000 names have been added to this edition, including an entirely new section, giving the names of upwards of 13,000 of the nobility and gentry. There are also departments devoted to the learned professions, to hotels, to agriculture, to education, and so forth; and the volume is rendered all the more useful by two handy maps of Edinburgh and of Glasgow. The provincial part of the Directory is arranged according to counties, and the towns stand alphabetically under the counties. All possible justice is done even to the most distant parts of Scotland, and it may surprise some of our readers to find that under "Orkney and Shetland" there are five booksellers and stationers at Kirkwall, four at Stromness, and three at Lerwick, which may be taken, we suppose, as a proof that Scottish education has penetrated to the extreme north, though the above trades have no representatives in the whole of the Isle of Mull, excepting a single stationer, who keeps the post-office at Tobermory.

Scotsman.

This new issue of the "Scottish Directory" has reinforced its claims to the favour with which the publication has already been received by the addition of many hundreds of pages to its bulk. Besides the Business Directory for the various Counties, Towns, and Villages in Scotland, which in previous years has been found of so much service, the volume now embraces Clerical, Medical, and Agricultural Directories, and an Appendix containing the names and addresses of English and Irish business houses. Much credit is due to the compilers of the Directory for their enterprise and industry in collecting this information.

Scottish News.

No effort has been spared to make the information regarding Scotland as complete as possible.

Liverpool Daily Post.

The annual edition has been issued, and will be welcomed by all who have business interests in Scotland.

Leeds Mercury.

A new edition has been issued of this valuable and carefully compiled work. A bulky volume, each edition being larger than its predecessor.

Birmingham Daily Post.

Ponderous work.

Greenock Telegraph.

An indispensable guide to Scottish traders, and should find its place in their counting-houses, skillfully and clearly arranged so as to make the information wanted at once and easily accessible.

Times, 9th April, 1886.

MacDonald's Scottish Directory and Gazetteer.—Messrs. MacDonald & Co., Edinburgh, have brought out this year a new and enlarged edition of their "Scottish Directory" increasing its bulk by over 300 pages. It is thoroughly business-like in its scope and object. The work may be consulted with advantage in order to find the names of writers, solicitors, factors, farmers, ministers of parishes, and general traders.

Newcastle Daily Chronicle.

The present issue, which has been carefully brought up to date, and includes some 40,000 additional names, fully justifies the claim of the work to take a high place among publications of its kind. The information given is most comprehensive in its character and excellently arranged, and this, together with the fact that it is issued at a comparatively low price, should cause the book to be kept for reference by all who have business relations with the Northern Kingdom.

Scottish Leader.

The construction of the work is evidently the result of much laborious and accurate work.

Edinburgh Courier.

Complete, accurate, and exhaustive.

Scottish Highlander.

As a book of reference the work is of great value. The Gazetteer gives a good deal of information and supplies a want which all feel in connection with the postal, telegraphic, railway, or shipping interest.

North British Agriculturist.

This work may be reckoned one of the best publications of the kind that has as yet appeared. In addition to a reliable directory for Scotch counties, towns, and villages, it contains a valuable English and Irish Appendix and Hotel Guide. Its compilers have done their work very creditably indeed—in a manner that will command the admiration of all who have occasion to utilise the volume. The Gazetteer is brief but concise and interesting, and forms a fitting concomitant to the business directory. Another feature of the work of special interest is a Map of Scotland; while a plan of Edinburgh and Glasgow is also given, showing the new Parliamentary divisions.

Northern Advertiser.

The Gazetteer Section gives the local and other desirable statistics of the Villages, Towns, Cities, and Parishes in Scotland, with the Postal, Telegraphic, Railway, and Shipping Information.

Mail Train.

It should certainly find a place in every commercial room in the country, especially where the house is owned by a landlord who caters for his customers' probable requirements.

The European Mail.

Grows in bulk as it grows in years. For accuracy of detail and completeness of information, we think the production second to none of a similar description. Altogether, the work will be found of immense value and usefulness to commercial men, advertisers, tourists, and others.

MacDonald's Tourists' Guides.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The amount of information compressed into this single volume is amazing. No place of consequence is passed over, and the points of interest are in every case faithfully recorded."—Kelso Mail.

"Well got up, profusely illustrated, and a marvel of cheapness."—The Buteman.

"Useful to tourists, and possesses not a little value as a book of reference."—Arbroath Guide.

"The arrangement is excellent; the information well selected and accurate; and the maps and illustrations are plentiful, appropriate, and skilfully prepared and executed."—Jedburgh Gazette.

"No one should attempt to do Scotland—that is, roam over it by mountain, moor, loch, or fell—without having MacDonald's 'Scottish Tourist's Guides.'"—Midlothian Journal.

"Containing intelligence of the highest literary ability and authenticity; full of racy descriptions of all places of historical interest; contains hundreds of illustrations and several good maps."—Morecambe Visitor.

"It is a guide book to possess."—Ardrossan and Saltcoats Herald.

"We would recommend 'MacDonald's Scottish Tourists' Guide.'"—Isle of Wight Express.

"No guide book for Scotland so complete and so richly adorned has been published at anything like the money in our time."—Fife Herald.

"A useful map is given, and the book is freely illustrated."—North Berwick Advertiser.

"Seems well contrived to help the tourist to the utmost amount of enjoyment with the least waste of effort."—Kirkcudbrightshire Advertiser.

"Should prove extremely useful to travellers."—Falkirk Express.

"A most valuable travelling companion over Scotland."—John o' Groat Jour.

"It seems difficult how any tourist can thoroughly see any part of Scotland without its use. We can highly commend the publication."—Ilfracombe Chronicle.

"We have pleasure in commending such a sensible and reliable hand-book for tourists."—Helensburgh and Gareloch Times.

"No one should undertake to spend a holiday in Scotland without having this book in his possession; and above all it is most excellently illustrated."—Torquay Directory.

"The book is well printed and elegantly bound."—Northern Advertiser.

"The guide is unrivalled. The descriptive, historical, and literary references are wonderfully accurate."—Scottish Border Record.

"It ought to be on the commercial room or drawing-room table of every hotel where tourists are likely to frequent."—Perthshire Advertiser.

"The arrangement of the book is good, and the places are easily found."—Scottish Guardian.

"Full of information well brought up to date, and is a useful vade-mecum for trippers in any part of Scotland."—Elgin Courier.

"The guide is excellent, cheap, and handy."—Ayr Observer.

"Armed with a companion such as this the tourist in his search after 'fresh fields and pastures new' need never be at a loss for lack of information."—Oban Times.

"The information imparted is full, accurate, and well arranged, and the letter-press is greatly aided by the woodcut and other illustrations which are found on nearly every page."—Hamilton Advertiser.

"Handy, cheap, and popular, MacDonald's guide book is worthy of wide circulation."—Dunoon Observer.

"The information is generally correct."—Dumfries and Galloway Courier.

"Profusely illustrated with views of the most exquisite scenery in Scotland, is indispensable to tourists, and nobody who contemplates a journey northwards should be without it."—Mona's Herald.

"Valuable for reference, embracing, as it does, so much and such wide-spread information regarding the land of the canny Scot. It is profusely and artistically illustrated, and is furnished with a number of most useful maps. We warmly commend the publication."—Hastings and St Leonards Observer.

"Almost on every page there are well-executed woodcuts. On the whole it is an excellent book."—Orkney Herald.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Times, 29th January, 1887.

MacDonald's Scottish Directory and Gazetteer.—The work which Messrs. Kelly have done so long and so successfully for London and for England and Wales, Messrs. W. MacDonald & Co., of Milne Square, Edinburgh, have accomplished for Scotland, and for its two capitals, both that of law, learning, and fashion in the east, and that of commerce and industry in the west. In this volume we find duly recorded the names of all the merchants, shippers, and manufacturers of Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee, Aberdeen, Greenock, and Paisley, followed by an appendix, which contains the chief firms of a similar kind in Birmingham and other centres of industry to the south of the Tweed. Upwards of 40,000 names have been added to this edition, including an entirely new section, giving the names of upwards of 13,000 of the nobility and gentry. There are also departments devoted to the learned professions, to hotels, to agriculture, to education, and so forth; and the volume is rendered all the more useful by two handy maps of Edinburgh and of Glasgow. The provincial part of the Directory is arranged according to counties, and the towns stand alphabetically under the counties. All possible justice is done even to the most distant parts of Scotland, and it may surprise some of our readers to find that under "Orkney and Shetland" there are five booksellers and stationers at Kirkwall, four at Stromness, and three at Lerwick, which may be taken, we suppose, as a proof that Scottish education has penetrated to the extreme north, though the above trades have no representatives in the whole of the Isle of Mull, excepting a single stationer, who keeps the post-office at Tobermory.

Scotsman.

This new issue of the "Scottish Directory" has reinforced its claims to the favour with which the publication has already been received by the addition of many hundreds of pages to its bulk. Besides the Business Directory for the various Counties, Towns, and Villages in Scotland, which in previous years has been found of so much service, the volume now embraces Clerical, Medical, and Agricultural Directories, and an Appendix containing the names and addresses of English and Irish business houses. Much credit is due to the compilers of the Directory for their enterprise and industry in collecting this information.

Scottish News.

No effort has been spared to make the information regarding Scotland as complete as possible.

Liverpool Daily Post.

The annual edition has been issued, and will be welcomed by all who have business interests in Scotland.

Leeds Mercury.

A new edition has been issued of this valuable and carefully compiled work. A bulky volume, each edition being larger than its predecessor.

Birmingham Daily Post.

Ponderous work.

Greenock Telegraph.

An indispensable guide to Scottish traders, and should find its place in their counting-houses, skillfully and clearly arranged so as to make the information wanted at once and easily accessible.

Times, 9th April, 1886.

MacDonald's Scottish Directory and Gazetteer.—Messrs. MacDonald & Co., Edinburgh, have brought out this year a new and enlarged edition of their "Scottish Directory" increasing its bulk by over 200 pages. It is thoroughly business-like in its scope and object. The work may be consulted with advantage in order to find the names of writers, solicitors, factors, farmers, ministers of parishes, and general traders.

Newcastle Daily Chronicle.

The present issue, which has been carefully brought up to date, and includes some 40,000 additional names, fully justifies the claim of the work to take a high place among publications of its kind. The information given is most comprehensive in its character and excellently arranged, and this, together with the fact that it is issued at a comparatively low price, should cause the book to be kept for reference by all who have business relations with the Northern Kingdom.

Scottish Leader.

The construction of the work is evidently the result of much laborious and accurate work.

Edinburgh Courant.

Complete, accurate, and exhaustive.

Scottish Highlander.

As a book of reference the work is of great value. The Gazetteer gives a good deal of information and supplies a want which all feel in connection with the postal, telegraphic, railway, or shipping interest.

North British Agriculturist.

This work may be reckoned one of the best publications of the kind that has as yet appeared. In addition to a reliable directory for Scotch counties, towns, and villages, it contains a valuable English and Irish Appendix and Hotel Guide. Its compilers have done their work very creditably indeed—in a manner that will command the admiration of all who have occasion to utilise the volume. The Gazetteer is brief, but concise and interesting, and forms a fitting concomitant to the business directory. Another feature of the work of special interest is a Map of Scotland; while a plan of Edinburgh and Glasgow is also given, showing the new Parliamentary divisions.

Northern Advertiser.

The Gazetteer Section gives the local and other desirable statistics of the Villages, Towns, Cities, and Parishes in Scotland, with the Postal, Telegraphic, Railway, and Shipping Information.

Mail Train.

The European Mail.

Grows in bulk as it grows in years. For accuracy of detail and completeness of information, we think the production second to none of a similar description. Altogether, the work will be found of immense value and usefulness to commercial men, advertisers, tourists, and others.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The amount of information compressed into this single volume is amazing. No place of consequence is passed over, and the points of interest are in every case faithfully recorded."—Kelso Mail.

"Well got up, profusely illustrated, and a marvel of cheapness."—The Buteman.

"Useful to tourists, and possesses not a little value as a book of reference."—Arbroath Guide.

"The arrangement is excellent; the information well selected and accurate; and the maps and illustrations are plentiful, appropriate, and skilfully prepared and executed."—Jedburgh Gazette.

"No one should attempt to do Scotland—that is, roam over it by mountain, moor, loch, or fell—without having MacDonald's 'Scottish Tourist's Guides.'"—Midlothian Journal.

"Containing intelligence of the highest literary ability and authenticity; full of racy descriptions of all places of historical interest; contains hundreds of illustrations and several good maps."—Morecambe Visitor.

"It is a guide book to possess."—Ardrossan and Saltcoats Herald.

"We would recommend 'MacDonald's Scottish Tourists' Guide.'"—Isle of Wight Express.

"No guide book for Scotland so complete and so richly adorned has been published at anything like the money in our time."—Fife Herald.

"A useful map is given, and the book is freely illustrated."—North Berwick Advertiser.

"Seems well contrived to help the tourist to the utmost amount of enjoyment with the least waste of effort."—Kirkcudbrightshire Advertiser.

"Should prove extremely useful to travellers."—Falkirk Express.

"A most valuable travelling companion over Scotland."—John o' Groat Jour.

"It seems difficult how any tourist can thoroughly see any part of Scotland without its use. We can highly commend the publication."—Ilfracombe Chronicle.

"We have pleasure in commending such a sensible and reliable hand-book for tourists."—Helensburgh and Gareloch Times.

"No one should undertake to spend a holiday in Scotland without having this book in his possession; and above all it is most excellently illustrated."—Torquay Directory.

"The book is well printed and elegantly bound."—Northern Advertiser.

"The guide is unrivalled. The descriptive, historical, and literary references are wonderfully accurate."—Scottish Border Record.

"It ought to be on the commercial room or drawing-room table of every hotel where tourists are likely to frequent."—Perthshire Advertiser.

"The arrangement of the book is good, and the places are easily found."—Scottish Guardian.

"Full of information well brought up to date, and is a useful vade-mecum for trippers in any part of Scotland."—Elgin Courier.

"The guide is excellent, cheap, and handy."—Ayr Observer.

"Armed with a companion such as this the tourist in his search after 'fresh fields and pastures new' need never be at a loss for lack of information."—Oban Times.

"The information imparted is full, accurate, and well arranged, and the letter-press is greatly aided by the woodcut and other illustrations which are found on nearly every page."—Hamilton Advertiser.

"Handy, cheap, and popular, MacDonald's guide book is worthy of wide circulation."—Dumoon Observer.

"The information is generally correct."—Dumfries and Galloway Courier.

"Profusely illustrated with views of the most exquisite scenery in Scotland, is indispensable to tourists, and nobody who contemplates a journey northwards should be without it."—Mona's Herald.

"Valuable for reference, embracing, as it does, so much and such wide-spread information regarding the land of the canny Scot. It is profusely and artistically illustrated, and is furnished with a number of most useful maps. We warmly commend the publication."—Hastings and St Leonards Observer.

"Almost on every page there are well-executed woodcuts. On the whole it is an excellent book."—Orkney Herald.

MacDonald's Tourists' Guides.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The amount of information compressed into this single volume is amazing. No place of consequence is passed over, and the points of interest are in every case faithfully recorded."—Kelso Mail.

"Well got up, profusely illustrated, and a marvel of cheapness."—The Buteman.

"Useful to tourists, and possesses not a little value as a book of reference."—Arbroath Guide.

"The arrangement is excellent; the information well selected and accurate; and the maps and illustrations are plentiful, appropriate, and skilfully prepared and executed."—Jedburgh Gazette.

"No one should attempt to do Scotland—that is, roam over it by mountain, moor, loch, or fell—without having MacDonald's 'Scottish Tourist's Guides.'"—Midlothian Journal.

"Containing intelligence of the highest literary ability and authenticity; full of racy descriptions of all places of historical interest; contains hundreds of illustrations and several good maps."—Morecambe Visitor.

"It is a guide book to possess."—Ardrossan and Saltcoats Herald.

"We would recommend 'MacDonald's Scottish Tourists' Guide.'"—Isle of Wight Express.

"No guide book for Scotland so complete and so richly adorned has been published at anything like the money in our time."—Fife Herald.

"A useful map is given, and the book is freely illustrated."—North Berwick Advertiser.

"Seems well contrived to help the tourist to the utmost amount of enjoyment with the least waste of effort."—Kirkcudbrightshire Advertiser.

"Should prove extremely useful to travellers."—Falkirk Express.

"A most valuable travelling companion over Scotland."—John o' Groat Jour.

"It seems difficult how any tourist can thoroughly see any part of Scotland without its use. We can highly commend the publication."—Ilfracombe Chronicle.

"We have pleasure in commending such a sensible and reliable hand-book for tourists."—Helensburgh and Gareloch Times.

"No one should undertake to spend a holiday in Scotland without having this book in his possession; and above all it is most excellently illustrated."—Torquay Directory.

"The book is well printed and elegantly bound."—Northern Advertiser.

"The guide is unrivalled. The descriptive, historical, and literary references are wonderfully accurate."—Scottish Border Record.

"It ought to be on the commercial room or drawing-room table of every hotel where tourists are likely to frequent."—Perthshire Advertiser.

"The arrangement of the book is good, and the places are easily found."—Scottish Guardian.

"Full of information well brought up to date, and is a useful vade-mecum for trippers in any part of Scotland."—Elgin Courier.

"The guide is excellent, cheap, and handy."—Ayr Observer.

"Armed with a companion such as this the tourist in his search after 'fresh fields and pastures new' need never be at a loss for lack of information."—Oban Times.

"The information imparted is full, accurate, and well arranged, and the letter-press is greatly aided by the woodcut and other illustrations which are found on nearly every page."—Hamilton Advertiser.

"Handy, cheap, and popular, MacDonald's guide book is worthy of wide circulation."—Dunoon Observer.

"The information is generally correct."—Dumfries and Galloway Courier.

"Profusely illustrated with views of the most exquisite scenery in Scotland, is indispensable to tourists, and nobody who contemplates a journey northwards should be without it."—Mona's Herald.

"Valuable for reference, embracing, as it does, so much and such wide-spread information regarding the land of the canny Scot. It is profusely and artistically illustrated, and is furnished with a number of most useful maps. We warmly commend the publication."—Hastings and St Leonards Observer.

"Almost on every page there are well-executed woodcuts. On the whole it is an excellent book."—Orkney Herald.
